By John Aitken

The National League System have come into effect over the last 40 years but it started with the formation of the Alliance Premier League in 1978/79 season the Northern Premier League, Isthmian Football League and the Southern Football League where the top divisions in the Non-League. The Alliance League later became today's National League and lowered down one level and these became a feeder to the above league.

The Northern Premier League was formed in 1968 from teams from the Cheshire County League: Altrincham, Bangor City, Hyde United, Macclesfield Town, Northwich Victoria, Runcorn and Wigan Athletic, from Lancashire Combination League: Chorley, Fleetwood, Morecambe, Netherfield (Kendal Town), South Liverpool, from Midland Football League Gainsborough Trinity, Goole Town, Scarborough, Worksop Town, from North Regional League Ashington, Gateshead, South Shields and West Midlands (Regional) League Boston United and today it takes promoted teams from Northern League, North East Counties, North West Counties League, Midland Football League and United Counties Football League which are its five feeder leagues to this day. Ten of the original members either went on to be or were or are Football League members.

These leagues were dropped one more level down when National League North and South Divisions were formed in 2004 and the League System started placing leagues to feed these leagues with some other minor leagues feeding three or more off them.

The purpose-built Keys Park has on one side of the stadium is the Main Stand and this single tiered stand, is raised above pitch level and has 710 seats and roughly is half the length of the pitch in size, straddling the halfway line. There are small portions of open terrace to either side and at the back of the stand are some hospitality areas.

Behind one goal at the Hednesford End is a small covered seated stand, which has a capacity of 300. Although situated directly behind the goal it doesn't extend to the full width of the end, having open terracing to one side towards the Main Stand.

The Old Ground now under Keys Avenue

The other two sides of the ground are similar sized terraces. When first built they were open to the elements but have since had roofs erected over them. There is also a small club shop, located at one corner within the ground (in-between the Main Stand and Hednesford End), that offers a good selection of programmes from local clubs.

Ground Guide

Mostly comprised of flat standing areas for spectators, on one side are the dugouts, with various club and social rooms behind them, and a small amount of covered terracing as pictured below. There is also uncovered hard standing running the length of this side, and at one end it is raised a few feet above pitch level, giving a nice elevated view of proceedings if the weather is fine. North Ferriby also have a small club shop, with a cupboard containing programmes and the like, and a table out the front selling the largest selection of pin badges from various other clubs

Opposite On the far side across from the entrance, is the structure pictured above and below, which covers the entire length of the pitch. It has stepped terracing at each end, and a couple of seated sections in the centre near the halfway line. It's impressively sized, with the only drawback being that the seating is all very low down, so any passing spectators tend to obscure your view of the pitch when they're walking past, no matter where you sit and both ends are small open standing areas.

Driving to the Ground

From the North West

Once over the bridge turn left at the roundabout towards Leeds and the M62. Then take a left signposted North Ferriby. Follow this road down, past the Skoda garage and to the crossroads, where you turn left into Church Road, follow the road down, past the Church and Library, you will eventually come upon a sign for the ground on your left, just before the overhead rail bridge.
